Comments                      Thanks for speaking with me today, Karl. After looking carefully at my sidewalls, I decided on the magnet closures instead of velcro for the side attachments. Start sewing - there are many mosquitoes waiting to be frustrated!
Heidi

Comments              I have decided that magnets would be best to attach the sides of the curtains to my vinyl pillars. Please do not build or send the actual curtains until both of us are clear on the measurements. Pictures are being taken and will be sent along with adjusted measurements. Thank You.

Comments                      I have a balcony, with a fixed aluminum awning, whose dimensions are 18'2" by 4'7" by 90". It is L-shaped with 18' being the | while the 4' being the _ . the floor is cement, while the walls are brick. So I figure that I will need the marine snaps for the floor, and the velcro attachment for the top rails of the Aluminum awning.

Comments              We are fitting screens into French doors. Thus we need velcro across the tops and down one outer (long) edge of each curtain. We will glue or staple the other velcro strip to those surfaces. I hope the velcro comes attached to the curtains! We need two nylon rods also.

Comments                      Hello! We would like to have Extra Strength Magnets on Panel 1, 2 and 3 instead of the normal magnets, and Extra Strength Magnets on the right side of Panel 4, and the left side of Panel 5. (We need normal magnets for the left side of panel 5 and right side of panel 6, because those sides will be touching Plastic Siding, and we need normal ones for in between panels 5 and 6 because that will be our opening out of the enclosure.) You will have to send us an invoice to pay for the difference for the extra money the High Powered Magnets cost, and for the fastener (some type of glue?) for the plastic Siding. Thanks!

Comments              Oh, my God! Why would it cost so much to ship such small items, $23.62 for a $31.00 order? Shipping is almost as much as I'm paying for the magnets themselves! There isn't even a choice of shipping method (I would be OK with USPS, don't need these in a rush, certainly not at FedEx rates). This is very disappointing, I wish I had known I would need more of these. I would have ordered them with my original curtain order (where I paid $31.22 for shipping of two curtain panels, two 7ft. strips of tracking and all related hanging supplies). This stinks. This would have definitely influenced the very high the ratings I provided I provided a few days ago in the Yahoo!Shopping merchant evaluation...

Comments                I believe that I have accurately measured and understand the installation criterian. I have ordered one panel 23 ft wide by 9 ft tall and intend to wrap it around a two sided exposure which creates my front porch. The screening will be hung on the outside of the porch rather than inside. I plan to use the velco and magnets to hang the netting and secure it to my siding and the concrete slab porch. If you believe that I have a misconception Relative to the installation guidelines I can be contacted on 847-854-4484 Thanks, Barb Smallwood

Comments              we ordered two 3 ft panels but would prefer if they were smaller: 29.5" each also we are using these panels over a doorway and we do have small children in our house so please supply the alternate method to the magnets.
thank you.

Comments              I wasn't sure about adding any to a doorway configuration. I added 1" to each panel to accomodate this. If that isn't adviseable just subtract 1" per panel. Or if there is 2" needed for each panel 1" needs to be added.

Comments                      Hi Kurt, could you possibly make these configured for curtain rail but not supply the tracking as it is easier for me to get this in Spain. One more request, could you supply me with say 500 curtain hooks, yours are just the right size but the only ones I can get over here are too big. If you could include them in this order and let me know what I owe you and I can either send it by post or include it in the next project. Also you said to remind you that you promised me an industrial marine snap setting tool.
kind regards Paul.

Comments            We are enclosing a "u" shaped area using an upper deck as our "roof" with your tracking method - just wanted to make sure that all edges are bound - we are going to insert fiberglass rods at the two sides that will attach to our siding/house using marine snaps. Also, are the seams where the panels join very noticeable? Can we have just one panel, therefore no seams? ...Thank You.

The 6-6 panel is 82 high. Can this panel have the male side of the velcro stiched to the top instead of the female velcro. This panel is going to velcro together with an existing job you made for me earlier in the year.
The 5-8panel is 87 high. This is a door covering for myself.

Comments                      This is a 3 sided exposed front porch. panel 1 is the left side looking out standing on porch facing the street(also where I would like the opening which will be at the house wall----panel 2 is the width of the porch and lastly panel three is the right side of the porch which will also connect to the house wall made of brick. I am placing the netting on the outside of wooden beams, however my velcro attachment will be hung to aluminum sided ceiling. The house wall is brick, which is what I will need to attach to on the left side or panel 1 for an opening. I assume that all of the attachments will be included with my order to make the opening as per the website indicates. Please let me know if you feel I would need to order any additional items for attaching based on the details that I have provided. Thank you.

Comments            This is for a garage door, if you hadn't already guessed. We don't use the garage for vehicle storage but will be using the velcro all the way around (even the bottom/floor) to keep our indoor-kitties inside. Hence the oversized dimensions...lots of extra for tethering. Should be strong enough as long as the velcro sticks to the cement, wouldn't you think? Thanks! ;)

Comments                      Hi Kurt
I recently ordered my curtains and have just gotten them up. Due to the breezes through our covered porch area, I need a few more magnets to keep my curtain closed against our masonry walls, and eliminate a few gaps. The small magnets which came with the curtains don't do the trick at a few places - so I thought to switch to the larger size magnets.
By the way, the fiberglass rods are great, and DO give the curtain more balance and "firmness".
As you mention on the website, the curtain has a "relaxed fit". However, I am thinking about placing two marine snaps on the bottom edge, to snap to the floor....the length of my curtain is about 9 feet from wall to wall. Due to breezes, the curtain tends to billow a bit, and pulls itself from the magnet-sandwich which I implemented on one side.
I figure if it is snapped in two places on the floor, this will illiminated a lot of the billowing, and put less stress on the magnet closing.
On the other wall the curtain has been successfully marine-snapped to the wall - worked great.
However, I used magnets on the one side because I cannot drill into the wall (there is an internal PVC drain in the wall, and I don't want to risk puncturing it with the marine screws. ) Otherwise, we are very happy with the whole result.
NO MOSQUITOES AND NO FLIES! Yeah!

Comments            We accounted measured the total width from secure point furtherest edge to other secure point furthest edge, then added 1" since it was one panel, then 2" since it was just over 16' wide...all this done based on your instructions...hopefully it is right? This is for a standard 2 car garage with velcro attachments.

Comments              Matt, I intend to use these at the bottom to hold the curtain in close to porch...unless you think they will not work. I am much better with glue than I am a drill & those plastic things. Pls. send me an e-mail with your suggestion if I'm completely off base. I love my curtain...no more fighting mosquitos or trying to keep the cats from scaring my parrot. Thx, Nancy

Comments                      The space I am enclosing is a cement patio under a second-floor balcony. I plan to use the magnets and fiberglass rods to secure one end of each curtain to the wood exterior house, as well as to create a "door" closure between the two panels. I added 2 inches to each panel for the wall attachment (as well as the extra 1 inch per panel and 1 inch per foot that you recommend). I didn't add anything for the "door" closure. If I need additional width to accommodate that overlap, please add it.
Thanks so much. I am really excited about this product!!!

Comments                      marine snaps-900 black, 100 white please. where possible for you it is much more convenient for me if the delivery is done through united states postal service(USPS) as this means I get notified at this end and can then collect at a time suitable to me instead of having to wait about for a delivery which can be any time over two days. If you could tie this order in with the one from yesterday and despatch them as one on fri 12th. sep. as we are off to England for our daughters wedding and will be away for the next week. will get skype sorted as soon as we get back and will let you have our skype address. many thanks and best regards Paul.

Comments                We are going to use this panel to keep redwood needles out of our son's sandbox. We are going to fasten it on all 4 sides using marine snaps. Please leave out the velco. We just want a rectangular panel that has been hemmed on all 4 sides for marine snap attachment.

Comments                      I will need both sides of panel 1 to open with the fiberglass rods. Only one side of panel 3 will have an opening.
I live in the Bahamas - I'll send you photos- and the no see ums are BAD! I have used no see um screen for the house and it works great, I hope that this will work for the porch! I do have some gaps in the overhang, about 2 ft by 3" each, how do you suggest dealing with this- I have some leftover no see um screen from doing the house screens. I thought about just using a staple gun. Also, i really need this order by Sept 17, as I am making a trip to Miami and back to the Bahamas, can we expedite? Thanks!! Carla Johnson

Comments              FYI - I need 10' of track - for a movie screen/curtain that will hang in front of our existing mosquito curtain, from the new track (top) and be fastened via velcro at bottom. I want the screen to "match" (blend in with) the mosquito curtain that we already have. By the way Kurt... we LOVE our Mosquito Curtain. Our entire neighbor hood ends up on our porch during peek Michigan mosquito season (mid-July ~ August). JRB
